DOING VERY WELL, THANK YOU

THIS paper has compiled a table of production of the mines of Tonopah from January 1, 1915, to date and it will be interesting and instructive to peruse. It evidences that the mines are growing better day by day. The increase in tonnage during the period of twenty-four weeks has been 16.1 per cent and in valuation 13.5 per cent. This was in the face of the fact that the low price of silver has caused the companies to hold down their headings and devote more attention to development work than ore extraction. The tonnage thus far this year is 249,444 and the valuation $5,113,030. This is approximately a million a month, which will prove ample to keep the coyote away from the collar of the shaft.

THE NERVE OF THE GOVERNMENT

THE only way a newspaper owner can meet his payroll is by keeping his display columns filled with live advertising. A newspaper is rarely backed by sufficient assets to conduct its business as does the government, in its postal department, for instance, by creating deficits. Uncle Sam has lately levied both income and stamp taxes, with a possibility of syntax in the near future, the newspaper publishers being required to pay their prorata if they are so fortunate as to have incomes, yet our avuncular relative has the nerve to send out to the press, and the anti-administration press at that, a letter begging the papers to print free of charge an advertisement of public lands it offers for sale. This is the limit for unadulterated, chemically pure, acid tested gall.

TAKE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST RABIES

DOGS afflicted with rabies have bitten a number of people in Elko and Humboldt counties during the past few days. It is believed that hydrophobia will be very general in Nevada this season, for the heated term is still ahead of us, that being the time of year when the disease is most prevalent. There is a fairly well substantiated story that an experimentalist in southeastern Oregon, in a laudable endeavor to rid that region of coyotes, adopted the dangerous method of trapping one of them, inoculating it with the virus of hydrophobia and turning it loose to spread the infection among its tribe.

Unfortunately, however, some of the diseased wolves attacked domestic dogs and thus the disease became widespread. After making heavy inroads into the ranks of coyotes and dogs in the neighborhood where it started, the hydrophobia was communicated to northern Nevada and many people suffer from wounds. The cases are being pasteurized, but the success of the treatment is not yet demonstrated. Tonopah is hundreds of miles away from the nearest reported case of rabies, but the utmost precautions should be taken and, if the disease appears here, all dogs should be muzzled and suspicious cases should be isolated.

WAITING FOR THE POINT TO THE STORY

THE "God bless you's" exchanged by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan do not have appropriate sequels in the succeeding verbosity of Mr. Bryan and the strained silence of Mr. Wilson. The latter has not had a word to say regarding the parting and its cause, while Mr. Bryan, if he continues to pour forth his explanations, will eventually get to something of real interest.

It was assumed when he suddenly dropped his portfolio and scampered out of the White House that he heard in the distance the roll of drums and the trumpet call that would undoubtedly follow the dispatch of the second note to Germany. Assuredly the president had insisted upon making a referendum of the rejoinder and the hand that had so softly caressed the plumage of the dove of peace could not be expected to wear a mailed glove when it signed the document. When the note was made public and its words of gentle admonition and fraternal warning were read, it was found that there was nothing in the message to arouse war's alarms. Something else caused Mr. Bryan to decamp so hastily. Two people know, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan. The former will not tell and the latter may get to it eventually in his peroration.

MUST STAND TOGETHER

THAT business men must stand together in action looking toward the remedy of bad conditions brought about by the free trade administration and congress was the keynote of the address of Albert Greene Duncan, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, at the recent annual meeting of that association in Boston. The attitude of the country in general has been unfavorable to American business, and President Duncan does not hesitate to say so. In saying this he is well within the limits of truth and fact. A period of antagonism toward business, beginning in the Roosevelt administration and continuing throughout Taft's term, culminated in 1912 in the advent to power of a political party whose chief mission has seemed to be the infliction of all possible hardships and ill treatment upon the men who employ labor, pay wages, and by achieving business prosperity seek to enhance the prosperity of the people as a whole. For this exhibition of senseless animosity toward American business the country has paid and is still paying a heavy penalty. When business men fully recognize both the cause and the effect of existing conditions, and stand together to remedy those conditions, the day of improvement is not far distant. It will be the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1916.

CONSTRUCTIVE JOURNALISM WILL SOON BE DEMANDED

NINETY per cent of the space on the first two pages of an alleged "constructive" journal reaching this office today was devoted to war and crime—if a distinction may be made between them—while of the scant remainder litigation and accidents left room for but a single cheering topic, a boost for the newspaper's beauty contest, a matter of self-advertising. It is little wonder that the educational magazines are growing in popularity and that those in greatest demand are published at brief intervals, either semi-monthly or weekly. The influence of the newspaper is rapidly becoming undermined by its endeavor to create a taste on the part of the reading public for a menu of horrors. Items of construction are either hidden away in obscure places, with tiny headings, or are denied publication, while harrowing details of destruction are always given prominence. Perhaps there is a demand for news of crime and suffering, but if so it is a demand created by the newspapers themselves, which have provided this form of mental pabulum so long that it has developed a habit on the part of the readers.

There are newspapers, and the Bonanza is proud to say that it is one of them, that seeks to hold the mirror up to the bright side of life, and it is a convex mirror at that, but there is a serious handicap on the part of the news services. In its latest issue the Bonanza published twenty telegraphic news stories. Sixteen of them related to war, one to a murder case, one to the reconstruction of Mexico, one to the development of a mining property and one to the awarding of medals to Nevada for exhibits of minerals and agricultural products. The last named was only put on the wire because of its local application and was condensed into eleven lines, but it was the only story that the Bonanza considered worthy of "playing up," as was done. Of the other two constructive stories, one was harrowing in its details of Mexican atrocities and there was a selfish interest in sending the mine story.

On the other hand, the local department contained forty-five items of news and with the possible exception of a prize fight story and a threatened lawsuit, each was on a cheerful or constructive theme, as reference to the issue will show. If the Bonanza had the same control of its telegraphic service that it has of its local department, this would be markedly a constructive newspaper, such as will be demanded by the reading public in the next generation.

TO DEVELOP COPPER CLAIMS

Work on an extensive scale is being inaugurated on the Mono Consolidated copper property, about 20 miles northeast of Bishop. This mine, in which J. Sub Johnson and Frank Carson are largely interested, is under the direct management of John Shortall. The present plan is to run a tunnel approximately 1000 feet to cut the ledge at depth.—Inyo Register.

Proven, practical value appeals to the buyer of a motor car. More than 700,000 satisfied Ford owners prove the practical qualities of Ford cars. In town or country, in the professions or on the farms, for business or pleasure, the Ford serves everybody. An average allowance of two cents a mile keeps it going. It's cheaper than walking.

Buyers will share in profits if we sell at retail 300,000 new Ford cars between August 1914 and August 1915.
